Dear Mr. Martin,

The city of Scottsdale understands and supports the national Next Generation Air Transportation System (NextGen) goals of efficiency and lower emissions. However, several constituents have reached out to explain there is increased noise and in some instances physical vibrations at their homes now that the flight paths have changed to include additional frequency over north Scottsdale. Residents have expressed additional concerns this week after a report that you are considering altering the recent changes made over Phoenix neighborhoods and that it may intensify the impact to Scottsdale.

Anything you can do to mitigate these concerns without impacting other residents is most appreciated.

Regards,
